Birmingham natural history and philosophical society, Birmingham, Eng.
Formed 1894 by the union of the Birmingham natural history and microscopical society (founded 1853) and the Birmingham philosophical society (founded 1876). In 1906, absorbed the Midland malacological society (founded 1898) and in 1908 the Birmingham entomological society (founded 1888).
The component societies are entered under their own names in the Library of Congress catalog, up to the time of their union, with the exception of the Birmingham philosophical society, the Proceedings of which form a continuous series with the Proceedings of the Birmingham natural history and philosophical society.

B56 Blacker, William.
... An essay on the improvement to be made in the cultivation of small farms by the introduction of green crops, and house-feeding the stock thereon: originally published in an address to the small farmers on the estates of the Earl of Gosford and Colonel Close, in the county of Armagh. With a preface addressed to landlords, giving full information to those who may be inclined to adopt the plan recommended, as to the best mode of introducing it, and the results attending its introduction, together with the expenses likely to be incurred thereby. By William Blacker, esq. Dublin, W. Curry, jun. and co.; London, R. Groombridge; etc., etc., 1848.

The gentleman's recreations: in three parts. The first part contains a short and easie introduction to all the liberal arts and sciences, &c. The second treats of horsemanship, hawking, hunting, fowling, fishing, agriculture, &c. Done from the most authentick authors, especially several lately printed at Paris, as may be seen in the preface; with great enlargements, made by those well experienced in the respective recreations. The third is a complete body of all our forest, chase, and game-laws,

The formal garden.
Robinson, William, 1888-1893.

Garden design and architects' gardens; two reviews, illustrated, to show, by actual examples from British gardens, that dipping and aligning trees to make them 'harmonise' with architecture is barbarous, needless, and inartistic, by W. Robinson, F. L. S. London, J. Murray, 1892.

xviii, 73, 3 p. illus., 20 pl. 24¹/₂"
The books reviewed are: The formal garden in England, by Reginald Blomfield and F. Inigo Thomas, London, 1892; and Garden-craft, old and new, by John D. Sedding, London, 1891.

Board of visitors of the National museum and the Botanic gardens, Dublin.

In the "Dublin science and art museum act" of 1877, when the Dublin museum was transferred from the Royal Dublin society to the government, provision was made for a Board of visitors to aid in the administration of the museum and of the Botanic gardens.

By the formal agreement of March 1, 1881, between the Department of science and art (Gt. Brit.) the Commissioners of public works in Ireland, and the Royal Dublin society, the board was to consist of twelve members: four members appointed by the state; three, by the Royal Irish academy; five, by the Royal Dublin society.

The first meeting of the board was held March 4, 1881.
